GIN

Gin is a distilled spirit that is flavoured with botanicals such as juniper, angelica, liquorice, coriander, lemon peel and even cucumber or green tea depending on the brands. The various amount and combination of botanicals create certain flavours with distinctive notes.

GEOGRAPHY

Originally from Holland, where it was called genever, gin is now made all over the world. However, the majority of popular gin brands are distilled in the United Kingdom.

CATEGORIES

London dry: A high-proof, aggressive, crisp style of gin with prominent flavors of juniper and citrus. The London dry style is widely considered the benchmark for all other gin. While it is associated with the city, it does not need to be made in London; in fact, only a couple of London dry gins are actually made in London proper.

Plymouth: A gentle, citrus-forward style of gin similar to traditional London dry but with a lower ABV. Plymouth gin is distilled at a specific distillery in Plymouth, England.

Old Tom: London dry's historical cousin, boasting a similar juniper-forward flavor profile but with a richer body and sweeter flavor.

Genever: The granddaddy of all gin created by the Dutch as a delivery system for juniper, which was thought to offer protection from the plague. Genever is distilled from a malted wine base and then redistilled with botanicals. Its flavor is sweeter and richer than other style of gin, almost like an unaged whiskey with a hint of botanicals.

New style: Also called "New Western" or "American" to indicate that this is the Wild West of gin. Most take flavor or style cues from the classic gin styles, then add or subtract botanicals and experiment with different raw materials for the base spirit.

*All the Gins are served in measure of 45ml.
Schweppes tonic water top-up is included in the price.
Imported Gins are subject to availability.*
